Treatment Details

Help us explain treatment clearly, reduce fear, and set expectations before a patient calls.

Root canal - typical process steps

Administration of anaesthetic gel or spray so that anaesthetic injection cannot hurt the patient then after the anaesthesia root canal process is started opening of the tooth so that we can reach into the pulp chamber where nerves are located of the tooth after the removal of the blood vessels and nerve tissue from the pulp chamber irrigation of the tooth are carried out and after the removal of all dead tissues from the tooth filling of the road Canal is done which is called obturation and then final filling of tooth is done.this usually takes one to four visits depends upon the condition of the tooth

Explain the usual patient journey from examination/diagnosis through treatment and restoration.

Typical number of sessions

2-3 sessions

Typical session duration

half hour almost

Pain-management approach

Patient is usually fearful for the pain of anaesthetic injection but before the injection we usually apply anesthetic gel or anaesthetic spray so patient feel the least possible pain during the root canal process.during the procedure patient does not feel pain because of the effects of anaesthesia and after the procedure is done patient is given antibiotics and painkillers so the post op pain is very minimal.

Explain anesthesia, discomfort expectations, aftercare, medication guidance, or anything patients should know.

What makes your root canal treatment different?

we offer painless rootcanal procedure

Other important treatment processes we should explain

Use this for cosmetic procedures or another service that commonly generates patient questions.
